2024
Winter Rose
Catalogue

SPRING PARK
NURSERY

Dear gardening friends,

Welcome to our 2024 Winter Rose Catalogue for dormant bare rooted plants. In this year's catalogue, we are thrilled to present a lovely selection of bare root roses, including some great new releases that are sure to captivate.

As we reflect on the past year, we are filled with gratitude for the continued support and enthusiasm of gardeners like you. Your shared passion for plants inspires us to continue growing and evolving, bringing you the finest quality plants and gardening inspiration.

2023 marked a significant milestone for us as we celebrated our 30th anniversary. To commemorate this special occasion, we held a memorable 30th birthday event that coincided with the Creswick Garden Lovers' Weekend in November. It was a fantastic experience to see long time supporters and many new faces come share in the joy of growing together.

Over the summer, we undertook an extensive refurbishment of a large section of our display gardens. These rejuvenated gardens hold a special place in our hearts, as they served as the enchanting setting for the wedding reception of our very own team member Brenton. It was our first time hosting such an event, and the romantic backdrop of the gardens helped made it a wonderful day. This newly renovated area will now be known as the Aaron Morse Memorial Garden, dedicated in loving memory to the late brother of Brenton's partner.

We thank you for being a part of our journey over the past three decades. Your support and shared love of gardening means the world to us. We look forward to welcoming you at the nursery soon and helping you create the garden of your dreams.

Keep well, and happy gardening!
Chris, Brenton, Ken, and Dot Rae

Maximising Blooms on Climbing Roses

Horizontal growth is a key factor in promoting abundant blooms. By encouraging the main canes to grow horizontally along your support structure, you promote the development of flowering side shoots.

Begin training your climbing roses to grow horizontally when the main canes are young and flexible. Use soft garden twine or plant ties to secure the main canes to the horizontal supports of your trellis, arbor, or fence. Ensure you leave enough room for the canes to expand as they grow.

In late winter or early spring, cut back the previous year's flowering side shoots to about 10cm, just above an outward-facing bud. This encourages the development of new side shoots and maintains the desired horizontal structure.

Pierre de Ronsard

Rose Cultural Notes

Situation

Roses grow best in a sunny, well-drained position, needing at least 5 hours of sunshine a day to perform their best. They can also be grown very well when shaded for part of the day, but they will have fewer blooms. If the plant remains shaded and wet for long periods it will be more susceptible to fungal diseases. The planting location should have plenty of air movement to help prevent mildew, but some shelter from strong wind is preferred.

Soil

Roses prefer to be grown in a medium to heavy loam about 35 cm deep with a good clay subsoil. Clay soils can be improved by adding lots of organic matter such as well rotted manure. Gypsum can also be added to break up the clay before planting. Plants will grow in any type of soil but the more sandy the soil, the less water and nutrients will be retained and should be replaced regularly. Organic type fertilisers work best in a sandy soil situation.

Step 1: Soak your rose in Seasol

Step 2: Select your planting site

Step 3: Dig your hole with mound in the middle and rose graft above the soil surface

Planting Bare Rooted Roses

After purchasing your roses you should aim to plant them as soon as possible. If you cannot plant them immediately, take care not to let the roots dry out. This is very important as if they become dry, the plants vigour and growth may be set back – or in the worst case die. Soaking in a bucket of water and a cap full of Seasol added for a few hours before planting is also a good idea, this just helps the plant get the best start.

Dig a hole large enough to accommodate the roots of the plant comfortably and the bud union (graft) is just above the ground level. Place a mound of soil in the middle of the hole and spread the roots out over the mound. Place a light coverage of soil over the roots. At this stage, we recommend that for each rose one dessert spoon full of Osmocote (8 to 9 month slow release fertiliser) be added. A good handful of Blood 'N' Bone can also be added to the remaining soil that is to be back filled into the hole. Tread the soil reasonably firmly, leaving a basin around the rose to help retain water, then water in thoroughly. If you like you can add Seasol or use the bucket of soaking water.

Standard roses are planted in the same way but with a stake placed in the centre of the hole for support first. Weeping roses are grown with a pole and a rose ring for extra support.

Rock dust is a natural fertiliser product that can be added to your soil while planting to help with soil improvement.

Do not add other manure that is high in nitrogen (N), such as Dynamic Lifter, as this can burn the roots.

Step 4: Apply slow release fertiliser and rock dust to surrounding soil

Step 5: Back fill soil
Step 6: Water in well

Planting Potted Roses

Potted roses can be purchased and planted at any time throughout the year. It is important to avoid disturbing the roots when removing the plant from the pot, as this can cause a severe setback to the plant. Dig a hole, twice the size of the pot so that the bud union is 50mm above the soil surface. Add some slow release fertiliser to the soil, then place the rose in the hole and fill with soil. Water in well and finish off with a layer of mulch.

Step 1: Select your site for your potted rose to be planted

Step 2: Dig hole twice as large as the pot

Step 3: Apply fertiliser to soil
Step 4: Place rose in the hole, backfill and water in well.

Step 5: Mulch your newly planted rose.

Feeding

Roses are voracious feeders and for the best growth it is recommended that they be fed every 6-8 weeks during the growing season. Vary the types of fertilisers at each application such as Blood and Bone, Organic Rose Foods, Liquid Flower and Fruit, or a Complete Rose Food, etc. In the spring we recommend that a top dressing of a complete fertiliser be worked into the soil. A good rule is to feed plants at the start of spring, summer and autumn.

For newly planted bare rooted roses it is recommended that you don't use pelletised animal manure for at least a few months, as the fresh new roots can be burnt and set the plant back. Water all fertilisers in well so that your plant will get the benefit and be able to absorb the fertiliser.

Black Spot and Powdery Mildew

Fungal problems mainly occur during spring and autumn, or when the weather is humid. They do not generally hurt the plant, but are unsightly.

Black spot is a scattering of dark blotches on the leaves. Eventually leaves turn yellow and drop off. Powdery mildew is a creamy white mould, which attacks the flower stems or leaves and buds of flowers, appearing as white blotches on the leaves. The occurrence of both diseases is weather related. Black spot thrives in humid, warm conditions. Powdery mildew usually occurs in the spring and autumn, with mild days and cool moist nights.

For the control of these diseases, spray with Triforine or any good black spot spray. Use these preventative sprays every 7 to 14 days during spring. Lime sulphur can be sprayed during winter dormancy as indicated on the bottle. This will kill the fungal spores that lead to disease and give your rose a fresh start in spring.

More Than Roses

Our nursery has built a reputation for its stunning roses, which have captivated customers with their beauty and variety. However, many visitors are pleasantly surprised to discover that our expertise extends far beyond these beloved flowers. In addition to our extensive rose range, we take great pride in specialising in two other magnificent plants: Hydrangeas and Peonies.

Hydrangeas

Hydrangeas, with their lush, vibrant blooms and versatility in both garden landscapes and floral arrangements, have become a favourite among our customers. We offer a wide selection of well over 100 Hydrangea varieties, each with its own unique charm.

Peonies

Similarly, our Peony collection showcases the breathtaking beauty and delicate fragrance of these timeless flowers, which have been cherished for centuries and have been having a real resurgence in popularity.

Much, Much More

Our passion for plants doesn't stop with these three though. We have curated a vast and diverse range of flora in our nursery, ensuring that every visitor can find something to suit their tastes and garden requirements. From exotic specimens to cherished old favourites and newly released varieties, our collection is a testament to our dedication to horticultural diversity. In fact, our very own Chris Rae has taken this commitment to the next level by breeding Pacific Coast Irises, adding a touch of exclusivity and innovation to our already impressive array of plants.

We invite you to explore our extensive range on our website, where you can discover the depth and breadth of our plant offerings. Not everything is online, so better yet, come and visit us at the nursery, where you can experience the beauty of our plants firsthand, seek advice from our knowledgeable staff, and lose yourself in our horticultural haven.

Postal Orders

Packaging and Dispatch

Rose plants are shipped during July and August. All plants are wrapped in damp paper and the roots are sealed to maintain moisture. They are then packaged in cardboard cartons and sent via Australia Post. Roses transport extremely well. When your roses arrive, undo and place them in a bucket of water for a few hours to rehydrate the roots and reduce the stress on the plant before planting. Do not allow plants to dry out. To reduce stress on new plants, make sure to give them a thorough watering when you have planted them.

Collecting Your Order From the Nursery

Your order can be collected from the nursery 7 days a week from 9am to 4pm during June, July and August. Collection outside these hours by appointment.

We will contact you when your order is ready for collection. Please call us before you collect.
